Graduate Profile and Rationale

The Master of Counselling provides students with advanced professional skills for counselling ministry and for pastoral and spiritual formation. It nurtures the formation of professional identity and vision suitable for individual and relational counselling. The course equips graduates to engage in supportive and intensive therapies with psychological competence and theological congruence.

Graduates will have added extensive transferable knowledge and skills in counselling to enhance their professional work

Course Outcomes

Knowledge

Graduates will possess:

- advanced understanding of the theories, processes, and strategies of counselling;
- an integrated level of theoretical and experiential knowledge of supervisory leadership and management structures;
- an understanding of research principles and methods applicable to counselling studies and its practice.

Skills

Graduates will demonstrate advanced, specialised cognitive and technical skills in counselling, so that they are able independently to:

- demonstrate expert counselling skills and practices across a range of clients;
- analyse critically, reflect on and synthesise counselling knowledge to identify, reflect and act on complex client contexts;
- interpret and transmit counselling knowledge, skills and ideas through coherent and sustained counselling practice to specialist and non-specialist audiences.

Applications of Knowledge and Skills

Graduates will possess the ability to:

- apply knowledge and skills to initiate and plan counselling interventions;
- apply critical self-evaluation and theological reflection to their practice of counselling;
- apply professional practice in counselling with a range of people in a wide variety of contexts including multi-disciplinary and multi-cultural environments.
